WHO IS ROQUOIS?

Roquois is an eclectic singer-songwriter whose talents have been heard worldwide. Her music has been featured in shows such as Orange is the New Black, Switched at birth and Odd Mom Out. She has also performed on national television as a featured singer in the National Cherry Blossom Festival Parade, the National Independence Day Parade in Washington, D.C., and has performed live on WJLA's Good Morning Washington. Other performances include venues such as Howard Theatre (DC), Anita's Way (NYC), Make Music New York Music Festival, The Abbey (Orlando), The Creative Alliance (Baltimore), Carnegie Library (DC), Penn Social (DC), Venue 578 (Orlando) and more.

Her journey started in her hometown in Maryland, where she later relocated to Florida for college and began working as a singer and songwriter for one of Orlando's premier recording studios, Plush Studios. Since then Roquois has worked with artists, musicians and producers affiliated with Sony, Universal Music, Def Jam, The Voice and more.

Her Mantra: Singer - Songwriter - Superhero hints at her goals with music, not only to sing but to write relate-able, expressive and uplifting lyrics. Roquois strives to be her own breed of superhero who uses her gifts and talents with melodies and lyricism to leave her mark in the world, a magical musical legacy. Her debut album "Metaphors" is slated to be released January 2018 on Spotify, Tidal, Apple Music, Google Play, Amazon Music, and other streaming platforms.
